Schobert suffered the injury in the first quarter of Monday night's 28-23 preseason loss to the New England Patriots. He had what the Browns called a "stinger" and Schobert was being examined by Dr. David Geier, the same specialist who looked at him after he suffered a concussion in the third quarter of Cleveland's win over the San Francisco 49ers on Aug. 11. Schobert was knocked to the ground and lay on the turf for several minutes before being replaced by undrafted rookie Barkevious Mingo. Mingo, who spent this summer with the Browns, will play for the first time since he hurt his shoulder last preseason.Q: Broken after
